NO HOPE SEEN FOR CONFERENCE IN PARIS MAY 1

Reports State France Has Decided Not To Issue Bids For Meeting

MINISTERS TO CONFER

Experts Agree Peace Talks May Be Set After Big 4 Leaders Hold Session

WASHINGTON, April 13—State department sources said today there was no hope that the Paris peace conference could start May 1 as scheduled.

These sources said France had decided not to issue invitations for the meeting but would wait for the big four foreign ministers to set the date during their pre-conference get-together in Paris starting April 25.

The foreign ministers' meeting was called at the invitation of the United States to permit representatives of this country, Britain, Russia and France to work out final peace treaties with Italy, Finland, Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria.

Date Held Up

The final date of the 21-nation peace conference apparently will depend on the progress of the foreign ministers' meeting. Although their deputies have been working on the treaty drafts in London several weeks, they have disagreed on several basic points.

If the foreign ministers fail to reach an agreement on these points, it could mean that a peace conference may never be held along the lines laid down by the Moscow conference last December.

Separate Treaties Seen

The alternative might be for the big powers to conclude separate peace treaties with the Axis satellites although that would mean the end of the wartime big power cooperation. They also might pass the issues on to the general conference.

Russia has taken the position, however, that the treaty terms should be worked out in detail by the big powers before they are handed to the conference for ratification. That led some observers to believe that an agreement would be reached at the April meeting or not at all.

Byrnes Agrees To Plan

It also was learned that Secretary of State James F. Byrnes had agreed that if the foreign ministers can dispose of the treaty problems, they should take up the political and industrial internationalizing of the Ruhr and Rhineland.

France has refused to discuss a central administration for Germany until the problem of the Ruhr and the Rhineland is disposed of. Byrnes has been anxious to clear this problem from the roster of international difficulties for many months.

NEW YORK, April 13—Morris Cohen, 56, told Magistrate Henri Schwob that he was only playing dominoes for coffee and cake when a detective arrested him for gambling. The judge said gambling was gambling, no matter what the stakes, and ordered him held in $500 bail.

EX-SGT. WILLIAM NORTON, who won the Silver Star for knocking out a German machine gun nest at the cost of his right leg—was summoned to a New York court on a disorderly conduct charge brought by Mrs. Helen Lemski, his neighbor in the apartment below. Mrs. Lemski complained Norton "makes too much noise with his feet pounding on the floor," which Norton explained was necessary because he had to stamp hard to adjust his wooden leg. DEMOCRATS TRY TO OUST STONE

Ferguson And Other Leaders Oppose Appointment Of Republican To VA Job

COLUMBUS, April 13—State Democratic leaders will continue their efforts to oust Ralph H. Stone, Conneaut Republican who was appointed deputy veterans administrator here, State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson said today.

Ferguson said a committee of four Democratic leaders, including Albert Horstman, state Democratic chairman and national committeeman, had recently conferred with President Truman and other national party leaders on Stone's appointment.

Stone recently opened the Veterans Administration branch office here with supervision over veterans' affairs in Ohio, Kentucky and Michigan.

Ferguson said the Democrats were still opposed to the appointment because Stone's past record as a state official, when he was director of civilian defense in (Continued on Page Two)

AMUSEMENTS TO BE LEGAL AFTER COUNCIL VOTES

CLINTON, N. J. April 13—After Wednesday residents of Clinton will be able to attend movies and dances and other forms of public entertainment without being liable to a $50 fine.

The town council discovered that an ordinance passed in 1942 prohibited all forms of public entertainment. The statute originally was intended to curb public amusements on Sundays, but in printing the word "Sunday" was omitted from the text, making the law applicable for every day in the week.

A new ordinance will be voted on Wednesday.

BIG MAJORITY IS COUNTED BY CONSERVATIVES

Three Leading Parties Hold 322 Of 466 Seats In Nipponese Diet

TOKYO, April 13—Leaders of Japan's Liberal, Progressive and Social Democratic parties expressed willingness today to discuss formation of a coalition government as final semi-official election returns gave them 322 of the 466 seats in the diet.

Attention was focused on the possible formation of a coalition and on Premier Baron Kijuro Shidehara, who has ignored demands that his government resign.

The three leading conservative parties piled up an impressive majority. Final semi-official tabulation of the 30,000,000 votes cast gave the Liberals 139 seats, the Social Democrats 92, Progressives 91, Cooperatives 16, Communists five, Independents 84 and minor parties 38.

The total was only 465 because Social Democrat Yoshio Domori failed by 83 votes to win the minimum total required by law, although he placed fifth in the contest for five seats in Fukui prefecture. A re-election will be held to determine the fifth seat.

Of the total elected, 38 were (Continued on Page Two)

Highway Patrolman Captures Three Of Gang That Held Up Columbus Store

COLUMBUS, April 13—Search continued today for two members of a five-man gang that held up a Columbus super-market yesterday. Three of the gang were captured by a state highway patrolman.

The three men captured by Patrolman Howard G. Ramsey were identified as Parry Scarsellato, David E. Matters and Robert C. Eldred, all of Pittsburgh.

Ramsey found the men seated in an automobile near a grocery on the Scioto river road northwest of Columbus. He observed the men were nervous and acted strangely.

Although one of the men was armed and three other weapons were found in the car, Ramsey took them into custody without drawing his own revolver.

Patrolman Ramsey had been assigned to the river road area when the highway patrol was alerted by (Continued on Page Two)

Republicans Demand Democrats Join In Probe of Surplus Property Sales

WASHINGTON, April 13—Senate Republicans demanded today that Democrats join in a congressional investigation of surplus property disposal or take the consequences for any scandals which develop.

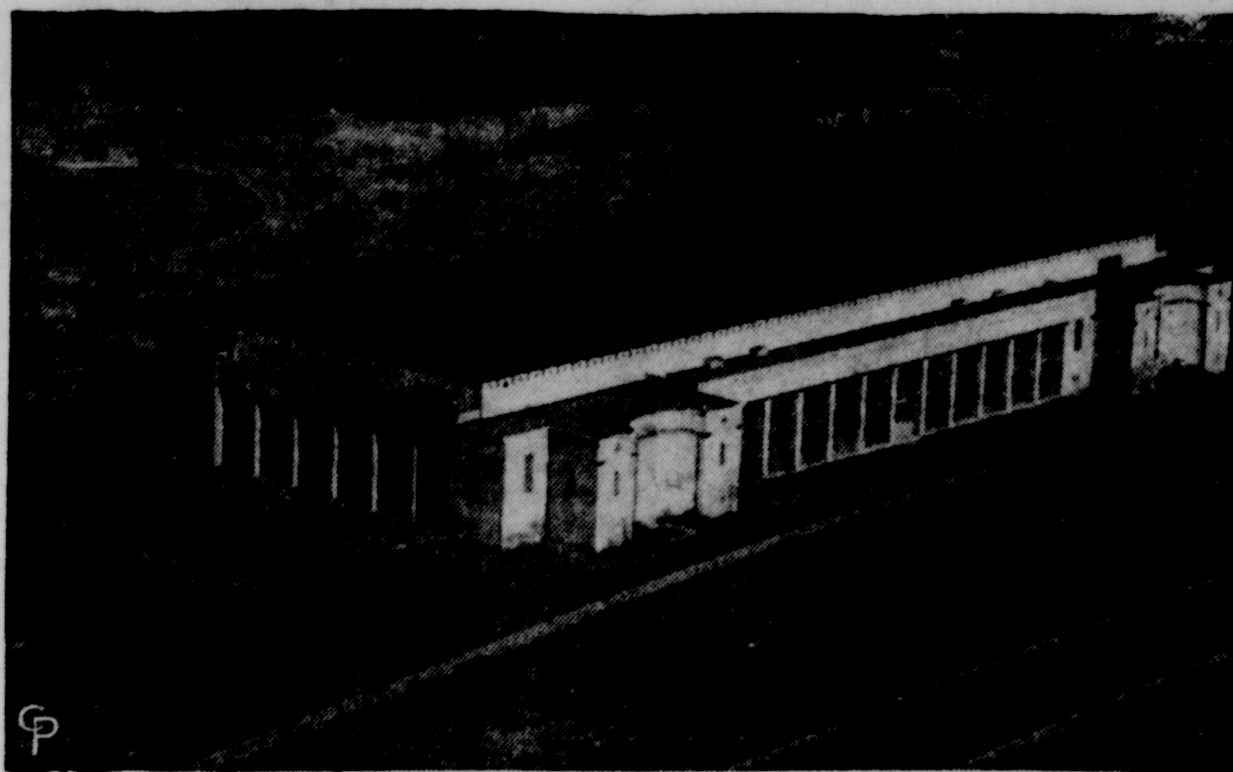

Some believed from the rising tide of complaints in congressional mail, that scandals already are in the making.

The complaints include charges that veterans are failing to get the preference which congress intended that veterans should have in acquiring surplus government property for use in farming or setting up businesses.

The matter became a partisan issue when Sen. William Langer, R., N. D., introduced a resolution calling for a special five-man committee to investigate surplus property disposal. The resolution was referred to the senate military committee.

Other Republicans promptly endorsed his proposal but senate Democratic Leader Alben W. Barkley, D., Ky., said that congress already has too many special

House Plans Definite Action On Draft, Still Trying To Soften Blow

WASHINGTON, April 13—The house scheduled decisive action today on draft extension even as it groped for some last-minute "out" that would make its decision more acceptable to the voters.

Congressional enthusiasm for anything short of a flat draft extension made it unlikely that the Army would get its request for a full year's continuance until May 15, 1947. The house military affairs committee recommended only a nine-months extension until Feb. 15, 1947.

Strongest sentiment seemed to be piling up behind proposals to exempt teen-agers from the draft or declare a five-months "holiday" from inductions. Either might be more acceptable to a congress with one eye cocked on the approaching November elections.

House Democratic leaders found strong support for a proposal by Chairman Andrew J. May, D., Ky., of the house military affairs committee to exempt 18 and 19-year-old youths from the draft.

They reported that sentiment almost was as strong for a proposal by Rep. Carl Vinson, D., Ga., to continue the act until Feb. 15, 1947, but suspend inductions from May 15 to Oct. 15 to see if volunteers would meet Army manpower needs.

An Army spokesman said the armed forces would not suffer a great shortage of men if inductions were halted for five months provided they could be resumed in event quotas could not be maintained. (Continued on Page Two)

Committee Seems To Agree Island Tests Necessary But Balks On Ships

WASHINGTON, April 13—Members of the senate naval affairs committee today seemed agreed with President Truman that the Bikini Island atom bomb tests must be held but balked on the number of ships involved.

Shortly after Mr. Truman described the tests as vital to this country's future defense plans, Committee Chairman David I. Walsh, D., Mass., asked that action be postponed on legislation authorizing the use of warships as "guinea pigs" in the tests.

Walsh said he had been informed by Vice Adm. W. H. P. Blandy, in charge of the tests, that the Navy may reduce its guinea pig fleet from 100 to 74 vessels. The senate committee next week will review plans for the tests, now scheduled to begin July 1.

Blandy, it was understood, informed Walsh that if 74 ships are used only one aircraft carrier and five submarines will be modern fighting ships. Of the total, 34 ships would be anchored outside the estimated effective bomb range. It was thought these would escape destruction and could be (Continued on Page Two)

BOWLES EXPECTS IMPROVEMENT IN CLOTHING SETUP

WASHINGTON, April 13—Economic Stabilizer Chester Bowles today predicted a substantial improvement in the cotton clothing supply by mid-July in his weekly radio address.

He said that "this whole troublesome situation" of inadequate supplies of low-cost men's shirts and shorts and women's house dresses "should be a lot better by the middle of July," under production-boosting plans the government has already put into effect.

At the same time, Bowles gave a frank appraisal of the clothing picture which, he said, "doesn't flatter any of us."

"Frankly, I think the record on getting low-and medium-priced clothing produced is no credit to either the industry or the government," Bowles said. "I think we're all going to see some definite improvement before long as a result of recent government actions."

The official weather forecast predicted higher temperatures Saturday afternoon and night with showers and cooler Sunday.

FORD PLANNING NEW LIGHT CAR

Postwar Expansion Of Auto Industry Seen In Ford, GM Announcements

DETROIT, April 13—The Ford Motor company matched its biggest competitor, General Motors Corp., today with plans to produce a new light car, setting the stage for a huge postwar expansion of the automotive industry.

Henry Ford, II, youthful president of the Ford empire, announced last night that a new division had been established to produce the new car and that work on new facilities would be started immediately.

The new light car, slated for introduction sometime after the first of next year, will be the first new Ford since the elder Henry Ford switched to the V-8 14 years ago.

'COSMIC RAYS' WILL BE TRIED OUT ON JUDGE

LONG BEACH, Calif., April 13—Operators of two big open-air "cosmic ray" factories, where they claim to cure everything from cancer to combat fatigue, try out their cosmic powers today on a judge. They are charged with violating health ordinances.

They were arrested yesterday at their ray-therapy plants, where officers found more than a hundred elderly patients wired to cosmic ray outlets and munching "cosmic" food.

Charles and Paul Beebe, whose father, Roy, invented the box to harness the cosmic, were charged, on eight counts, with violating business and health codes and county ordinances.

Ralph Hyton, 36, operator of a nearby drive-in cosmic ray center called "Hylton's for Health," was charged with five counts.

Carl Anderson, California Institute of Technology professor and Nobel prize winner who went along with raiding officers, said the "cosmic ray" boxes from which the "health currents" purportedly flow were "Rube Goldberg" machines that couldn't cure a stiff neck.

POLISH LEADER PREPARING CASE AGAINST SPAIN

Franco's Government Denies Being Menace To World Peace

RUSSIA BACKS POLAND

Action Fast On Spanish Issue In Washington, Moscow And Madrid

NEW YORK, April 13—Polish Ambassador Oscar Lange Carefully prepared his indictment against Spain today for presentation to the United Nations security council next week in the hope that he can convince the United States that the Franco regime is a menace to world peace requiring joint UN action.

The Poles are a little encouraged by revelations by high American quarters that the U. S. policy against action is not "frozen." These quarters indicate that if Poland can really show that Spain is menacing world peace and can suggest some way to cope with it, the United States might support her.

But nearly all diplomatic quarters concede that it is going to be extremely difficult for Poland to prove that Franco Spain really endangers world peace.

Preliminary sparring over Poland's charges meanwhile gave a dramatic and tense preview of the council's next major crisis.

This sparring included Franco Spain's angry denunciation and Soviet Russia's warm endorsement of the Polish charges, plus America's "wait and see" and "show me" policy.

Fireworks Promised
The temper of the preliminary charges and countercharges and statements on Spain promised several sessions of fireworks at the council next week when the Russian diplomatic counteroffensive against the United States and Britain is expected to swing into high gear.

As in previous UN crises, extracurricular events already are occurring at rapid speed. While the council continues its long "cooling off" recess until Monday, the activity on the Spanish issue shifted to Washington, Madrid and Moscow. These events, all of which tended to build up the tenseness among UN delegates, were:

Confirm Backing

In Washington—A high quarter confirmed, as reported earlier this week by the United Press, that the U. S. will back Poland's right to state her charges against Spain in detail before the council. But at the same time the United States will hold that if the council considers Spain a menace to world peace, then Franco Spain has a right to come before the council and defend herself.

At the Spanish embassy in Washington—A spokesman announced that Franco Spain would reject any invitation by the council. (Continued on Page Two)

OFFICERS TO BE NAMED AT YOUNG GOP MEETING

COLUMBUS, April 13—Approximately 400 delegates and alternates today were to register for the first post-war meeting of the Ohio League of Young Republican clubs here.

Highlight of the convention will be a banquet tonight addressed by John Adams, Stouss Falls, S. D., national director of young Republicans activities, and Thomas J. Herbert, Republican favorite for the gubernatorial nomination.

The executive committee of the Ohio group will be named at an afternoon session following reports of standing committees, secretary, treasurer and delegates by congressional districts.

A president, five vice-presidents, secretary and treasurer to preside during 1946 will be elected after which the new president will appoint the national committeeman and committeewoman.

Panel discussions will be held by the delegates on veterans activities, precinct organization, college clubs, party organization and finances.

Charles A. Wertz, Toledo, retiring president, will preside at the sessions.

will to defend itself because it would involve a question of "national dignity." He also challenged the council's right to discuss the Franco regime.

In Moscow—The Moscow radio announced that the Soviet government "wholeheartedly" endorsed the Polish charges against Spain and called for joint action to rid the world of the Spanish "menace" to peace.

Invites Commission

In Madrid—Franco's cabinet decided to invite the United Nations having diplomatic relations with Spain to send a commission to investigate Poland's charges that German scientists in Spain are being encouraged by Franco on new war weapon research.

Lange, who filed the formal complaint against Spain, declined to comment on the fast moving events in the Spanish crisis. But it was learned that he and his staff are preparing what is described as a carefully documented case.

They were encouraged a little by confirmation that the United States is not prejudging the case. The American attitude has been that the Spanish question is an internal matter. But now a high quarter in Washington confirms that the United States decision on any Polish proposal for action will depend upon what the Poles present in their indictment and what sort of action she suggests the council should take.

May Press For Break

This was a hint that the United States might support a Polish proposal if it were short of a diplomatic break—a policy the U. S. has never found very effective when used in Latin America. But the Poles and the Russians are not likely to feel that anything short of a diplomatic quarantine of Spain will be effective.

The United States will follow the same basic principles in the Spanish case as in the Iranian one. Those are that any nation has a right to tell the council in detail of any situation which it thinks menaces the peace, and that the accused has a right to tell its side of the story—even if it isn't a UN member.

In addition to the main general issue raised by Poland against Spain there is the major side one concerning the activities of Nazi scientists in Spain.

Issue Confused

This has become confused since first raised. The formal Polish complaint said only that the scientists were working on new war weapons. But a Polish source said later that Poland had evidence which indicated they might be working on atomic and rocket research.

The state department added to some of the confusion by first saying there was a plant near Bilbao, Spain, capable of atomic energy work. But later it issued a more carefully worded formal statement saying it had no information of any atomic energy work going on in Spain.

It was against that background that the Spanish government decided to invite a UN commission to investigate what it called Poland's charge that atomic energy was being produced in Spain. The limitation placed by the cabinet on the offer, however, is not likely to gain acceptance by UN. The cabinet specified that only nations with diplomatic missions in Spain could be on the commission—a condition which would eliminate both Poland and Russia.

Russians Active

The Soviet Union, until now busy with its own case over Iran, began yesterday to take a more active part in the preliminaries of the Spanish case. Moscow radio commentator Ivan Yermashov, giving Russia's "wholehearted" support to Polish charges, said: "Reports long have been coming through to the effect that German experts are at work in Spain to devise new weapons. For one thing they are carrying on atomic research."

Britain and the United States have expected ever since the Iranian crisis that the Soviets would retaliate. The Soviet campaign against what it describes as "an Anglo-Saxon dominated" world is not expected to be confined to Spain. An indication that the Soviet Union may be preparing a broadside diplomatic counter attack came in a flurry of denunciations in Soviet publications of British and American policies in Transjordan, Japan, Philippines, Germany, Greece, Palestine and Cuba.

tained. But he said the May proposal would be crippling.

"We have most of the men we can use in the group above 20 years of age," he said. "If we are prohibited from inducting 18 and 19-year-olds, we will be up against it."

The situation would be even worse, he said, if the house okays other proposals for which there is strong sentiment. They would bar drafting of fathers, limit length of service to 18 months, and require discharge of all draftees who have served 18 months.

Army hopes of a flat draft extension also faced a move by some members to forestall a vote until military pay has been increased to see how many volunteers could be obtained.

Both the house and senate military committees have recommended bills which would give servicemen substantial pay hikes. The senate committee, however, went along with the administration's request for a full year's draft extension but added some limitations.

Opponents of the move to dilute the draft argued, however, that no men would be inducted anyway if requirements could be met by voluntary enlistments. "This is just a precautionary measure," said Rep. James W. Wadsworth, R., N. Y.

Rep. John J. Sparkman, D., Ala., said it was a "safeguard." Both declared that congress could not afford to gamble with the national security.

"If we are strong, the Germans will know it," Wadsworth said. "The Japs will know it, and those other elements in the world who are not too friendly to our nation—they will know it."

A strike would tie up service on Transcontinental and Western's 28,270-mile system of domestic and foreign routes. Pilots and co-pilots now earn from $2,760 to $13,300 per year. They were demanding a top scale of $15,000 to $18,000 on better paying runs.

TROOPS ATTACK CHINESE TOWN DURING TALKS

KAIYUAN, Manchuria, April 11

(delayed)—Communist troops attacked this rail center 100 miles south of Changchun today while a Chinese-American team sought to make peace, and the Nationalist commander placed Communist armistice delegates under virtual arrest.

Nationalist General Liang Shen-wha charged the Communist members of the peace delegation either were sending out information about Nationalist positions to the Communist troops, or were unwittingly proving helpful to them.

The American chairman of the delegation, Col. Frank Culley of Yonkers, N. Y., intervened energetically for the Communist delegates and won an improvement in their position.

While Culley conferred with Gen. Keng Piao, the Communist delegate, and Lieut. Gen. Wang Kuan, the Nationalist delegate, in Communist headquarters during the night, Communist troops attacked the town.

Nationalist mortars, machine guns and rifles fired back and eventually halted the attack.

'BONER' NIGHT LEAD TO DEMAND HANNEGAN QUIT

WASHINGTON, April 13—Some

house administration supporters feared today that Democratic demands for a party caucus might lead to requests for the resignation of Democratic national chairman Robert E. Hannegan.

More than 50 house Democrats protesting what they called the Democratic national committee's second recent big "boner," signed a petition yesterday urging an immediate meeting to discuss what they called the "incompetency and inefficiency" of the committee. A caucus must be held if 50 members request it in writing.

The drive was touched off by a letter from Democratic headquarters urging county chairmen to select "proper" candidates for next November's congressional elections. It advised them to seek candidates who would "courageously support President Truman's legislative program."

What riled the Democrats was that the letter went not only to Republican-controlled districts but also to some which are represented by Democrats. Some congressmen thought the letter might be a move to "purge" Democrats who had not supported Mr. Truman's program.

millions probably would be involved.

The Chevrolet division of General Motors announced Tuesday it would produce a new light Chevrolet. GM announced a new division and said two plants would be built in Ohio. It was estimated an outlay of $10,000,000 would be involved in the plants alone.

GM said it would require 10,000 production workers to man the two plants at full production, expected by mid-Summer of next year.

Rumors have long circulated in the industry that many auto makers, studying the effect of postwar wage and labor costs on current models, have been worried about possible losses of buyers, once the existing car shortage is met.

Ford's plans were considered particularly significant in this connection, since it was the elder Ford who pioneered mass production of his model T at prices that brought it within the reach of millions.

The younger Ford, in his announcement, touched briefly on company plans for postwar models. He does not consider current Fords as postwar cars, describing them as a continuation of war-stopped production.

Ford said the new light car "will be presented to the public following introduction of the regular line of postwar Fords sometime after January, 1947."

STATE PRESSES CHARGES CLINE BURIED WIVES

SAN FRANCISCO, April 13—

The prosecution sought today to support its charge that ex-convict Alfred L. Cline buried three former wives under assumed names and obtained their property by forgery.

Prosecutors said additional testimony to support the contention would be presented as the grand theft and forgery trial of the former choir singer entered its sixth day.

Two key witnesses testified under questioning by chief prosecutor Norman Elkington that Cline had ordered the women cremated under false names and withheld the news of their deaths from relatives for months.

GAME VETERANS

SOMEONE came along the other day with a little story about a farm that is not unusual, but probably worth a few lines of type. It is a place of six or seven acres, a house of three rooms, which needs paint and a lot of other repairs, and a man and woman who simply can not wait for Spring to come. He is a disabled war veteran with a missing arm and eyes that can not see much, on account of a certain explosion that he does not think it necessary to talk about. And he is not asking for sympathy from anybody—because of his wife and his farm and the eye that can partly see, and one thing and another.

The two were going to retire when they realized how badly the veteran was banged up, but they soon abandoned that idea, drove around and found their little farm, and have moved in, and are getting ready for the Summer's work, without asking any favors from anybody.

But are they going to have any help? Well, you can just ask the neighbors about that. Everybody admires a game man who is in trouble, but makes no fuss about it, and the neighbors say this man will get along.

WIVES IN GERMANY

IT will be a great reunion when about 1500 American army wives and children join husbands and fathers in the occupation forces in Germany in a few weeks. Men who are stationed overseas for the long hitch will be glad to have their families and homes established there.

For the young women it will be a strange experience in a strange country—not easy in all respects, but very interesting. Settling down to regular house-keeping in Europe will give both soldiers and their wives a new perspective on life in America and the contrast with post-war Europe. Their views are likely to turn out to be somewhat different from the interpretations of troops operating only as military units.

One thing is sure. If their reactions are accurately and fairly reported, Americans as a whole will learn something from their experiences. So will the Germans.

MALE NURSEMAIDS

IF women are taking over men's work, men seem to be encroaching on women's. A 40-year-old Englishman has just announced his availability as Great Britain's first professional male nursemaid. He says that men have "more patience and ingenuity in keeping children amused" than women.

Maybe that is true in his case, but the average so-called head of the household, when circumstances call him to stay at home and mind the children, soon finds himself reduced to a state of wholesome humility.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, April 13—A revolution in union labor organization is being frequently predicted—but it may be a long time coming true.

As an aftermath of the Reuther-Thomas contest for control among the auto workers, reports have sprung up that Walter Reuther (CIO) is hobnobbing with Dave Dubinsky (AFL) with a view to bringing the auto workers into the AFL. A co-related rumor has John Lewis, the puffing mine boss, taking hold of AFL with his dominating character, shunting William Green aside, in anticipation of developing one big union in AFL and trimming the CIO.

The facts involved in the report are more apparent than real. Reuther is a Socialist. It is true enough he won what might be superficial "control" of the UAW in the recent convention—but it is a control so definitely limited he cannot exercise it much. He won the presidency, ousting Thomas, but the forces behind Thomas packed the executive committee against Reuther by a margin, which my superior sources inside labor calculate at 13 to 9. In the Thomas majority are labor politicians who run the gamut from conservatism to communism—and do not for a moment doubt the presence of the communists.

The obnoxious practises for Thomas at the convention, caused Reuther's election. Most U. A. W. delegates did not care much about ousting Thomas, at least a plain majority did not, until the communists became so active in behalf of Thomas. The communies made it easier for Reuther to get the presidency, because the majority in the union has a particular distaste for its own communist element—when, in specific cases, like this one, it can see plainly what they are doing, although in cases outside the union, involving domestic and international affairs the majority is frequently misled by its communist minority.

But Lewis, since his return to the AFL executive committee, has not been doing anything about this or other labor revolution matters. Indeed, he has made no move against Green, or to assert his bulk, or any move whatsoever. Lewis is not a Socialist. Dubinsky, like Reuther, is, although this fact is little known. (Most labor people count Dubinsky as a Republican in view of his strong political resistance to CIO and the Communists.) Lewis is a free enterprise man, who believes the greater the profits, the greater the wage. The best labor authorities doubt that he will try to fold his massive wing over the Reuther-Dubinsky hobnobbers. Indeed, if the Thomas faction of UAW could purge itself on the Communists, it might expect to do more business with Lewis than the Reuther-Dubinsky faction—granting that Lewis does assert himself in AFL when his coal strike is over and other amusements to occupy his time, are lacking.

The inner lineup of union politics is such, therefore, that a split in CIO is likely, and half of it or more may eventually go to AFL, but certainly not the Communist part, and possibly not the Socialist wingers.

DIET AND HEALTH

Chronic Respiratory Ills From Continued Head Colds

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

MOTHERS, be on your guard against long-continued head colds in your children. Persistent nasal drainage may be the aftermath of a cold as well as the beginning of a stubborn and health-wrecking sinus infection.

According to Dr. J. Ivor Griffiths of England, sinus infection in children may be a contributing cause for asthma, bronchitis and chronic running ear.

Air Spaces

The sinuses are air spaces in the face connected with the nose and lined with mucous membrane. Infections in these areas are hard to clear up because they are inaccessible and hard to get at. Nevertheless, in the majority of cases an early sinus infection will respond to simple treatment. The longer the condition lasts, the less likely it is that complete recovery will take place without some kind of operation.

Hence, it is doubly important that when sinus infection first starts, it be promptly treated, first, because this is the time when treatment is most effective; second, because chronic or prolonged infection in the sinuses may be the cause of other disease.

In treating sinus infection, the most important step is to promote drainage, that is, to make sure that the secretions in the sinuses can drain out through the nose. If this is done, the lining membrane is given a chance to get over the inflammation.

Polyp Growth

Sometimes little growths form in the sinuses, called polyps. If this happens, it is often necessary that the polyps be removed, so that drainage of the sinuses will occur. In order to encourage the drainage, the lining membrane is shrunk by using such drugs as ephedrine and epinephrine. Some physicians also like to use suction, employing a water pump to pump out the secretions. Of course, this will be done gently so that the tissues are not injured.

It is also important to build up the general health with proper food, fresh air and sunshine. The use of heat by means of short-wave treatment, which is an electrical form of treatment producing heat deep in the tissues, may also be helpful in overcoming inflammation and speeding up the drainage. In more severe cases, it may be necessary to puncture certain of the sinuses and wash them out with antiseptic solutions.

It is suggested that if the kind of germs which are producing the infection are the kind that are destroyed by penicillin the sinuses may be filled with a penicillin solution.

Remember that the earlier the treatment is carried out the better will be the results.

CHAPTER TWENTY

THE TWENTY minutes that passed before Inspector Barry's arrival were distinctly uncomfortable, and dragged interminably besides. Claire had gone out again and was alone with Deane and Valente. Deane paced the floor, ignoring me but frowning furtive glances at Valente standing in one spot, motionless as a statue and staring straight ahead at nothing, his gray hat and matching gloves in his hands.

I watched now the one, now the other, trying vainly to make sense of what they had said. Wondering about the many gray hairs in New York this fall, and wishing Valente would sit down. At last the inspector's voice came from the outer office, mingled with Claire's. And after another endless wait—of not more than five minutes—he strode in, accompanied by our so-called new office boy, complete with notebook.

Instead of a greeting he waved me out of my chair and into one way off in a corner, with a brief: "I'll talk to you later." Then he took my place behind the desk and asked: "Now! Which of you is Deane Kennard, and which Antonio Valente?"

The two identified themselves and Inspector Barry decided: "I remember she banged the door shut behind me quite forcibly as I stood waiting for the elevator."

"That doesn't say she was angry. My front door always bangs, no matter how gently you close it. All the front doors in the house do," I cut into the inspector's questioning unasked. Unheard and unheeded, too.

Inspector Barry only threw me a withering glance and went right on: "I see. Then, all in all, you were in Miss Applebee's apartment—how long?"

"Ten minutes at the most. Probably several minutes less," Valente said promptly. "That brings us to—3:30. What did you do with the rest of your time?"

"Nothing much," Valente smiled apologetically. "It was a fine day. I rode up the avenue on top of a bus. To Fifth street. There I went into Saks Fifth and looked at some ties, without finding what I wanted. Then I walked uptown. To somewhere in the Sixties. Then I hailed a cab and drove out to the airport. Much too early. I had to sit in the waiting room for over half an hour. And then, well, then I flew back to Boston, delivered the letter to Miss Tarrant at the theater—just in time—went to the hotel to change and—"

"Never mind Boston. Let's remain in New York," the inspector interrupted him. "You realize, I suppose, that I have only your unsupported word for the time you were in Miss Applebee's apartment, and that no one who knew you saw you—later?"

"I do. And you are right, Inspector," Valente admitted readily. "That is, you are right about no one seeing me. But I do have an alibi for the approximate time of my visit at the apartment, and for the all-important fact that Mrs. Ingalls was alive and well when I left it. One on which you can easily check me up. Deane Kennard will confirm that he told Miss Tarrant and me that Mrs. Ingalls mentioned my previous visit and departure to him."

"I see. Well, in that case that's all for now. In the outer room. And send Kennard in," the inspector told him.

Presently Deane had taken Valente's place and Claire, having slipped in with him quietly, was leaning against the wall beside me. Inspector Barry frowned when he noticed her, and I thought at first he wouldn't let her stay. But for some reason he changed his mind and turned to Deane with a slight shrug.

Deane was the picture of guilt. His hands constantly fumbled with his tie, cuffs and hair. His voice shook and sometimes gave out entirely as he answered the inspector's questions.

"Certainly I meant to go to Boston with Miss Tarrant. I was all packed when that—when Mrs. Ingalls called her up at the theater and begged her to make me stay in New York over Thursday so that she could—quote—apologize to me and make amends for her rudeness—unquote," he explained ungraciously when the inspector inquired into his change of plans. "I didn't want to. But Neal thought I should, just for the hell—the fun of it. To hear what she had on her mind. And so I stayed and had dinner with that—that lunatic Thursday night."

"I see. Mrs. Ingalls struck you as not quite sane that evening," the inspector interpreted Deane's version. "Why?"

"Oh, the way she didn't make sense when she talked. Ranting about throwing a stone at someone else and hitting me by mistake. And promising me all sorts of things if I'd stick around and protect her. She didn't say from whom or what. But when I found out she meant Friday afternoon I said, No, I couldn't. And she—well—she made a scene. Became noisy, you know. Right in the dining room of the Astor. Until I said 'all right,' just to shut her up."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

BETTER TO START RIGHT

HAVE YOU ever seen a runner loaf in the early stages of a race? Of course, if he loafs too much he gets beaten, no matter what he does later. Sometimes he dilly-dallies a bit, but not quite too much. He does put a burden on himself near the end, however. He has to finish with a terrific sprint in order to stagger over the line a winner. It is like that sometimes with a declarer who fails to figure out his problem thoroughly at the outset, when some fairly simple play would be available to make him the burden of building a fancy play for the end of the hand.

South came right in with dummy's A, then studied ways to get rid of a club, being sure the finesse against the Q was marked to fail. He decided to set up a spade by ruffing, in order to toss a club from his own hand.

Clear study would have shown that, with East marked to have all the high spades that were out, he could have led the Q, East covering with the K and South ruffing high. One heart lead to dummy would have brought a spade 10 lead covered by the J and ruffed high. Then a third heart to dummy could have readied him to discard the club on the spade 9.

But South didn't study that much. So to the second trick he led the spade 2. East playing the 5 and South ruffing. He went North with the heart Q and led the spade 9 to be ruffed, then realized he would have to build a squeeze. He ran all hearts but one, and the diamond A. When he now led his heart, he also had his three clubs, and dummy three clubs and the spade Q, the club 5 being discarded. East, with the spade K and three clubs, was squeezed. To save the spade K, he threw a club, whereupon the club A, K and 9 finished the hand, South being lucky West did not have the club 10.

WASHINGTON—The AFL has virtually burned its bridges as far as the Truman administration is concerned. Almost every action of the AFL these days opens the breach wider. Robert J. Watt, AFL representative on the Wage Stabilization board, continually files blistering dissents charging that the government's wage policy is pro-CIO and benefits CIO strikers.

AFL President William Green refuses to nominate a candidate for the post as second assistant secretary of labor since the first assistant secretaryship was filled "by the appointment of John W. Gibson, former Michigan CIO director."

The AFL was miffed by Gibson's appointment, contends it always held the first post in the past. AFL officials, too, have slugged the government's wage program, and particularly Economic Stabilizer Chester Bowles.

ARMY OFFICERS returning to Washington from India paint a rather dismal picture of the political future in that vast and densely populated nation.

When, and if, the British give India freedom, they predict the outbreak of a prompt and bloody revolution. Observant Army officials say that the Hindus and Moslems will never be able to agree on the creation of a government and that fighting will begin throughout the whole of India.

Those who have spent the war years in India say the Hindus will be overcome by the Moslems and that the followers of Mohammed will triumph by force over the Hindus.

These same sources also say that the food situation is no worse in India today than it ever was. India has never had a proper diet and they say there is sufficient food available now to feed the people as they have been accustomed.

This conflicts with British claims of crop failures and famine in India. Sir Ben Smith, British food minister, says conditions are bad and will grow worse on India's food front.

CIO LEADERS ARE HOPING that the current union squeeze for more money will make it easier to obtain members among still unorganized white collar workers.

Some industries have been attempting to head off such organization by granting salaried workers raises voluntarily. But union leaders feel they still have a fertile field for organization.

Unorganized workers of the white collar class with fixed incomes have been hard hit by recent inflationary trends, despite administration claims that the price lines are being held fairly well.

Washington observers point out that while ceiling prices have been maintained on some badly needed food and clothing items, those items have disappeared from store shelves.

CONTROLLED RELATIONS: Look for a State Department move for better channeling of many U. S. activities in dealing with foreign countries. Ace trouble shooters who have gone aboard on special missions, report the greatest chaos in dealing with Washington on post-war relations.

The embassies abroad have no way of coordinating the operations of the Agriculture Department, the Public Health Service, the Commerce Department, oil and aviation activities and dealings for credit with the Export-Import Bank or other agencies.

Moreover, when preliminary discussions are going on dealing with any of these subjects, there is no central funneling place in Washington.

Communications may be sent directly from representatives of any of the agencies to their headquarters. Inquiries may be battered around among minor experts and advisors for weeks before they go to a higher level. Then they may languish for some time before they reach the State Department.

UNION SERVICE ARRANGED FOR GOOD FRIDAY

Many churches in Circleville have been having special services through the period of Lent and some will have services each night of Holy Week.

In addition to the special services held by the different churches a Union Good Friday Service will be held from noon to 3 p. m. commemorating the last three hours Jesus was on the cross. This meeting will be held in the Methodist church and is being sponsored by the Pickaway County Ministerial Association.

A large attendance is expected at this Good Friday Service, and it should be the high point in spiritual experience for citizens of Circleville and the surrounding community. Many people have spoken very favorably of the similar service held last year and it is anticipated that the attendance will surpass that of last year.

Many persons will want to be present promptly at 12 noon and remain for the entire service. Persons who do so say that it never seems long when they enter into deep meditation on the crucifixion of Christ and consider what Christ suffered for us. Many have attended similar services intending to remain for only a period or two and then found it so inspiring that they remained for the entire service. The program for the service is divided into seven periods and those who cannot, for any reason, plan to attend the entire service should go as early in the program as possible and when it is necessary to leave they may leave quietly during the singing of a hymn without disturbing the service.

NEWS Behind the NEWS

Also not the Hillman part. Here the split runs wider and deeper. Sidney Hillman is a Socialist, but of somewhat the French kind which is currently playing ball with the Communists on political issues facing the nation and world. CIO President Phillip Murray is actually being faced with an inner revolt by these leftist groups. Lately Hillman has been very quiet, running his political action groups, and letting Murray handle the strike and wage-increase campaigns, which, incidentally, have done little to increase his prestige. Murray is a former protégé of Lewis, who brought him up, and a Catholic, ordinarily neither of these classes like Communists—or totalitarian Socialists of the Russians, Nazi, Fascists or other grades.

You can see plainly then that hi-politics of the unions is loading itself up with dynamite—or explosive atomic energy—but no one can yet guess in which direction it will explode, or when.

Unquestionably the Communists and friends are trying to get Murray as well as Reuther, and the mixed politics within CIO must inevitably become more mixed and bitter. Whatever comes out of the fray, Lewis is in a good position to handle it. His health is better now than in recent years. He looks vigorous enough to step to the fore of the labor picture in an effort to establish a sensible, non-destructive, non-sabotaging, democratic organization—but he has not yet started.

2 NEW MEMBERS ARE INDUCTED BY CUB PACK NO. 11

Circleville Cub Pack No. 11 held its monthly meeting in the club room of the Methodist church Thursday evening. The new cubmaster, Wendell Turner, conducted the meeting. The meeting opened by the cubs and parents giving the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag. The cubs then gave the cub promise and cub law.

A very impressive bobcat ceremony was conducted for two new members, Clyde Cook and Larry Thornton. One year cub pins were presented to Don Eitel, Roger Eagan and Thomas Hedges.

The program was made up of skits, each of the five dens taking part in the entertainment. This being aircraft month, several cubs made models and had them on display.

Present were 26 cubs, 35 parents, 4 den chiefs, 1 scoutmaster, and 6 boys making application to join the cub pack. Den No. 5, Mrs. Lemuel Weldon's den, had the largest parent representation and took the pack flag home as an honor for having the largest representation at this meeting.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of my dear husband, Charles Dean, who passed away April 14, 1946.
You did not one last farewell
You said goodbye to none
Just a cheery smile and a wave of your hand
And before I knew it you were gone
Time cannot change them but true
Years that may come can not sever
My loving remembrance of you,
Sadly missed by his wife,
Hulda C. Dean.

CHS Tracksters Place Second In Three-Way Meet At Chillicothe

Circleville high school track team placed second in a triangular meet at Chillicothe Friday.

Coach Steve Brudzinski's boys took only two firsts, both scored by "Red" Crawford, finishing with 40 points, far behind Chillicothe which had 91 1/2 but far ahead of Greenfield which finished with 16 1/2.

Crawford won both the distance races. His sprint at the finish gave him victory in both the 880 and mile run.

Rod Heine and Jim Carter were other high scorers, Heine getting 5 1/2 points and Carter 4 1/2 points. Carter was noted out in the 440 by Russell Pool of Chillicothe. The Circleville mile relay team lost by a "hair." Jack Hennis, who had been counted on to win points in dashes and jumps, did not participate because of a question of his eligibility.

Chillicothe won 11 firsts in the meet, nine seconds and five thirds. Circleville placed second four times, third four times and fourth 10 times. Greenfield won one event, the broad jump, placed one man second, three third and two fourth.

DICK HAYMES SHOW

Because requests from thousands of listeners urged that it be aired again, the thrilling "Stardust" production number, heard on a recent broadcast of "The Dick Haymes Show," will be repeated in its entirety on the Haymes program, Saturday, over CBS (8 p. m. EST). The tribute to Hoagy Carmichael's immortal ballad will be a feature of the musical half hour, with other songs to be heard, including Haymes' singing of "We'll Be Together Again" and "You Are Too Beautiful," while Helen Forrest thrushes "You Won't Be Satisfied."

AIR THEATER

Forty-five hundred music enthusiasts attending the 17th Annual Chicago Music Festival will comprise the audience in the mammoth Medinah Temple when the "Chicago Theater of the Air" presents Mascagni's melodious and dramatic opera, "Cavalleria Rusticana," Saturday, (10 to 11 p. m. EST) over Mutual.

CHARLIE MCCARTHY

Cornel Wilde, whose film time is taken up these days with a stellar role in "Forever Amber," visits with Charlie McCarthy, Sunday, at 8 p. m. (EST) over NBC. Edgar Bergen, Ray Noble, and Anita Gordon share the half-hour with Charlie.

REORGANIZE CONGRESS?

The time-honored methods by which our Congress has shaped the laws of the land will be given close and thorough scrutiny as the Northwestern University "Reviewing Stand" discusses the question, "Should Congress Be Reorganized?" on the MBS broadcast, Sunday, (11:30 a. m. to 12 noon, EST). Speakers for the broadcast include Rep. A. S. Mike Monroney; How-J. McMurray, professor of political science, University of Wisconsin; John D. Larkin, dean of the division of Liberal Studies, Illinois Institute of Technology; and Marshall Dimock, professor of political science, Northwestern University.

FRED ALLEN SHOW

Fred Allen promises to play ball when Leo "The Lip" Durocher, manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, turns up in the Alley for a visit, Sunday, at 8:30 p. m. (EST) over NBC. On home plate will be the regulars: Portland Hoffa, Minerva Pious as "Mrs. Nussbaum," Parker Fennelly as "Mr. Moody," Alan Reed as "Faustal Openshaw," and Kenny Delmar as "Senator Claghorn."

JACK BENNY

Jack Benny goes social Sunday, (NBC 7 p. m. EST), when he will have as his guest Ronald Colman and his wife, Benita Hume. This will be the fourth time the popular Colmans have been featured on the Benny program this season. The last time they appeared, Colman laid the winning letter in the "I Can't Stand Jack Benny Because" contest, a very painful interval for the penurious wit from Waukegan. This time it'll be purely a social evening—or so the Colmans hope. The rest of the Benny gang — Mary Livingstone, Phil Harris, Rochester, Don Wilson and Dennis Day—will be there too.

Palm Sunday Starts Observance Of Holy Week By Christians

CHURCHES MARK LAST WEEK OF CHRIST'S LIFE

Special Services To Start Sunday; Union Meeting Set For Friday

The fullest week on the Christian church calendar starts Sunday with the observance of Palm Sunday.

Most Circleville and Pickaway county churches will be crowded Sunday as Christians mark the anniversary of the triumphal journey of Christ into Jerusalem.

Special services are planned at some churches. Babies are to be baptized and adults received into membership during the services.

Many local churches are planning evening services during Holy Week, the observance of last week Christ spent on earth.

At Trinity Lutheran church the Rev. John Lange of Columbus will speak at services Tuesday and Wednesday evenings. Holy Thursday and Good Friday the Lord's Supper will be observed at 7:30 p. m. each day. The church will hold its annual memorial service between 2 and 3 p. m. Friday.

Special services are also being planned by the Church of the Brethren, First United Brethren, Calvary Evangelical, St. Joseph's Catholic, St. Philip's Episcopal, Presbyterian, First Methodist and others.

Union Good Friday services will be held on Friday. Most churches will join in observance of the last three hours Christ spent on the cross.

Special services will open at 12 noon and continue until 3 p. m. Next Sunday the joy of the resurrection of Christ will be relived again as everyone joins in the observance of Easter Sunday. Those who go to church once each year will help to swell the crowds which will pack all local churches on this happy day.

TUBERCULOSIS FIGHT OUTLINED AT LOCAL MEET

Catherine Denning Speaks At Dinner Meeting Of Health Association

Efforts are being made by the Ohio Department of Public Health to ferret out every case of tuberculosis in the state so that each case may be isolated.

So declared Miss Catherine E. Denning, Columbus, consultant in nursing education for the state department, in an address at the annual meeting of the Pickaway County Tuberculosis and Health Association, which was held following a dinner in the Pickaway Arms.

Speaking on "The Problems of Tuberculosis in Ohio," Miss Denning told of recent activities of the tuberculosis division of the State Department of Health.

All Means Used
"Every possible means are being used," Miss Denning said, "to ferret out every case of tuberculosis in the state so that it can be properly isolated and treated. Perhaps the greatest tool in this case finding is the mass X-ray survey which is especially useful in industrial centers where large masses of people work in close contact."

Miss Denning quoted State Health Department heads as saying that it is too bad that tuberculosis does not respect state or county boundaries. She complimented the Pickaway county organization for the good work it is doing and the liberality with which Pickaway county residents have contributed to the cause.

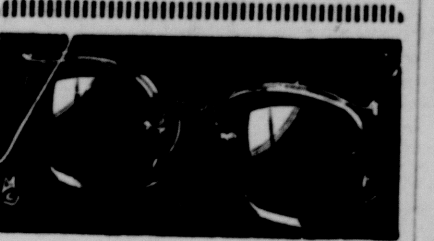

"The ultimate goal is the complete eradication of tuberculosis from Ohio," Miss Denning asserted. She stressed the need of new legislation to provide more hospital facilities in Ohio for the diagnosis and treatment of tubercular patients.

McDowell Presides
The meeting was called to order by George D. McDowell, county superintendent of schools. Twenty-nine persons were present.

Mrs. Cleon Webb, executive secretary, submitted a report of the organization activities and of the duties performed by her. Carl Bennett reported his visit to a recent meeting of the Ohio Public Health Association. Mrs. Mae Groom, city health nurse, gave a report of work with tubercular patients in Circleville.

Mrs. Robert Pickens, county health nurse, gave a similar report concerning work in the county. Dr. A. D. Blackburn, county health commissioner, reviewed tubercular work in the county. McDowell then introduced Miss Denning.

Officers Elected
Officers of the organization, selected for the ensuing 12 months, are: George D. McDowell, president; Harold Strous, first vice president; Miss Clara Southward, second vice president; Mrs. Harriet Henness, secretary; William Ulm, treasurer. Attorney Tom A. Renick was named legislative and city chairman. The names had been submitted by the nominating

SURE WE MAKE MISTAKES

But the reasons are shortage of help, inexperienced help, and extra heavy loads. It takes six months for an operator to gain sufficient experience to render the high standard of telephone service we want. A large number of our operators have less than four months experience, and the turnover rate is still very high.
